Samuel W. McCall Upon the Unveiling of the Monument of Hon. Thomas Brackett Reed at Portland, Me; August 31, 1910 A statue of a human figure, which does not represent a mere abstraction but a real and once breathing man, draws much of its significance from the nature of the forces creating it and also from a fit association with the spot where it is reared. At a time when government is expected to do everything, it is becoming quite too much the fashion to build monuments by law and pay for them by money taken by taxation from the people. The tribute thus rendered involves no special sense of sacrifice on the part of any human being. It is indeed cold compared with that which is paid by voluntary gifts and comes springing from the hearts of the givers. In one of the public squares of Washington stands a figure of Lincoln. It is not striking merely as a work of art, but it acquires a beauty and a pathos from the fact that it was reared by many small gifts from men and women whom his immortal proclamation had made free. It is surely a felicity that the statue of Thomas Brackett Reed which you unveil to-day should have been raised by the free gifts of those who knew and loved him and not from a levy upon any public treasury. Nothing could be happier also than its association with the spot where it is placed. It is ideally fitting that it should stand in the streets where he once played as a boy, in the city...
