Not illustrated. 1860 Excerpt: .the Cryptoderes, the head is conical, sometimes as as high as broad; the eyes are lateral. The neck is short, thick, cylindrical, invested by a loose non-adherent skin. When the head is retracted the neck assumes an S shape, and both are nearly, if not entirely, concealed by the anterior margin of the shell, or by the loose skin of the neck. The most striking anatomical difference between the two sub-families is that in this the pelvis is attached to the carapace by a cartilaginous symphysis, and not at all to the plastron, this permitting a certain freedom of movement; while in the second sub-family, the pelvis is immovably attached to both carapace and plastron. The first genus to be referred to among the Cryptoderes is Cistudo, which includes the common land tortoise (C. clausa) of the United States. Here the carapace is very high and...
